

RTE “Craft Seminary” Network Categories

Brewing Categories from Brewers Association (brewersassociation.org)

Craft Seminary Categories from “Reimagining Theological Education” project (theoedu.org)

Brewing Categories

Homebrewery

Capacity to brew: 5-30+ gallons per batch

Production of up to 200 gallons/year

For personal use only, cannot sell beer.

Nanobrewery

Capacity to brew: 30-90+ gallons per batch

Production of less than 10,000 gallons/year

Sells on site or via small local distribution network.

Example: 5 Rights Brewing.

Brewpub

Capacity to brew: 300-2000+ gallons per batch.

Production of less than 450,000 gallons/year.

Restaurant-brewery that sells 25-75% of its beer on site. Example: Hale’s Ales

Microbrewery

Capacity to brew 300-2000+ gallons per batch.

Production of less than 450,000 gallons/year. Sells

75% or more of its beer off site. Example: Red Hook

Brewery

Regional Brewery

Production of less than 180 million gallons/year.

Example: Samuel Adams

Macrobrewery

Production of more than 180,000,000 gallons/year.

Example: Anheuser Busch \(InBev\)

“Craft Seminary” Categories

Homebrewed Seminary

Capacity: 1-10 students. Congregation-based leadership development programs to raise up leaders for their particular context. Example: Ministry training programs in large evangelical congregations.

Nano-Seminary

Capacity: 5-30. students. Congregation, network, or denominational programs to equip leaders through a combination of competency based education and skill training. Example: ELCA Diakonia Program.

In-house Seminary

Capacity: 15-100 students. Non-accredited programs that equip leaders for a particular context (congregation, network, denomination) but also are utilized by students for other ministry preparation. Example: FORGE Hubs.

Microseminary

Capacity: 15-100 students. Non-accredited programs that offer intensive, degree-like offerings, which may or may not be recognized by denominations and congregations. Example: Center for Action and Contemplation

Regional Seminary

Capacity: Less than 400 students. Accredited, single site, degree granting programs that serve denominational or regional contexts. Example: Most seminaries in the Association of Theological Schools.

Macroseminary

Capacity: 400+. Accredited multi-site and/or multi-denominational programs that serve national contexts. Example: Fuller Theological Seminary.